French Prairie Bridge Designs Considered

The 21-member French Prairie Bridge Task Force is meeting in early December to consider five possible designs for the future French Prairie Bridge, providing pedestrians, cyclists and emergency vehicles passage over the Willamette River.

The Task Force is reviewing feasibility studies and public input gathered online and at an October open house.

Mayor's Message

Investing in Public Safety Remains a Top City Priority

I consider public safety to be one of City Council's top priorities, so I was dismayed by the news of last month's late-night shooting incident at Memorial Park.

In Wilsonville, seldom do we hear news that forces us to consider our safety, as our crime rate is one of the lowest in Oregon among cities our size. Nevertheless, this isolated incident serves as a not-so-subtle reminder that we cannot, and will not, take safety for granted.

In the coming weeks, City staff and the Wilsonville Police Department will continue engaging with residents to determine what resources — video surveillance, community policing, etc. — might deter any after-hours activity in our neighborhood parks.

Even as the city grows, we are providing Chief Rob Wurpes and his officers with the necessary resources to serve and protect our community. The City's police budget, $5 million, is up more than 28 percent from three years ago, accommodating an additional officer and more training opportunities.

Wilsonville continues to benefit from a partnership with Clackamas County Sheriff's Office that allows us to tap into the specialized personnel and services of a large law enforcement agency. These services — including marine units, SWAT, search and rescue, bomb squads, a behavioral health unit, and others — are not as readily available in other communities our size.

I appreciate the police department's efforts — through events like National Night Out and Coffee with a Cop, as well as an active presence on social media — to actively seek connections with residents that can inform their work and make our community stronger. It makes a difference.

Our recent Community Survey shows that 97 percent of residents feel safe in their neighborhood, 96 percent feel safe in commercial districts and 91 percent reported an overall feeling of safety in Wilsonville.

We all value the peace of mind that a safe community provides. The City will continue to support the difficult job our police force does by investing in resources that contribute to public safety.

Tim Knapp, Mayor

Community Center Group Works Together to Defeat Common Foe

Brad Moore believes in bringing people together to make the world a better place.

A fitness specialist at the Wilsonville Community Center, Moore has organized a weekly weight-loss support group for residents.

The free one-hour drop-in program, each Friday at 12:30 pm, harnesses Moore's positive energy and his interest in appreciative inquiry, a discipline that engages stakeholders in self-determined change.

"My motivation, when you look at what's going on in the world, is bringing people together to do good," said Moore, "If we stay out of politics, I've witnessed that people want to work together."

He's aiming for a low-pressure approach to losing weight. Weigh-ins are optional, he said. Setting and sharing goals is encouraged, but not required, to help participants remain accountable.

"Pressure only works for a little while," Moore said. "I want people to come in, laugh a little, and get support from one another."

Wilsonville resident Eric Jones is already seeing results in just three weeks since the class began in September. He's lost five pounds.

"I got up today, for the first time, and told everyone what I plan to accomplish," Jones said. "I plan to do that every week. I think it will be a motivator; I don't want to get up there next week and say I've gained back the weight."

Jones has never participated in a weight-loss program before. He likes Moore's motivational approach, Fitness instructor Brad Moore (seated under whiteboard at back of room) hosts a free weekly support group designed to get people working together to achieve weight-loss goals.

calling him "the Tony Robbins of Wilsonville."

"I think this will be different," Jones said. "It's going to be group-oriented, with a lot of input from the group on how to run the class."

Because the program is free, and people can come and go at any time, Moore is developing a curriculum that doesn't require week-to-week participation for people to feel invested in their outcomes. He's developing weekly group activities, sharing inspirational stories and offering short lessons. A recent class covered the basics of goal setting.

"It's a good challenge," says Moore, who is enjoying applying his educational background in an endeavor that can help people become happier and healthier. "Maybe it evolves. We'll see. I want to get people energized, bring them together, and give them tools to work together and help themselves."

Jones, for one, believes it's working.

"It's a nice mix of people, everyone in there is friendly, there's no judgment in the room," he said. "I think we're going to be able to work together."

Election Day Reminder: Ballot Drop-Off Now Located at City Hall

A gentle reminder to those dropping off their election ballots before the 8 pm deadline on Nov. 6: there is no ballot drop box at the Wilsonville Library.

The drop is now located outside of City Hall in order to facilitate convenient round-the-clock drop-off.

Four candidates are vying for two open seats on the Wilsonville City Council. They are: John Budiao, David Davis, Charlotte Lehan and Ben West.

All City Council positions are volunteer four-year terms, non-partisan and elected at large. The two candidates receiving the most votes take office on January 1, 2019.

Wilsonville Leaf Drop-Off Day Set for Saturday, Nov. 17

The City of Wilsonville, in partnership with Republic Services, is holding the annual, free Wilsonville Leaf Drop-Off Day on Saturday, Nov. 17, 9 am–2 pm.

Wilsonville residents are invited to drop-off leaves only — and no other yard debris — at the City Hall parking lot, 29799 SW Town Center Loop East.

Leaf Drop-Off Day
Sat, Nov. 17, 9 am-2 pm
 Wilsonville City Hall
 29799 SW Town Center Loop E.

City Public Works Dept. employees are on hand to help residents dispose leaves into large dumpsters provided by Republic Services.

No fee is charged for dropping-off leaves. The City is asking participants to bring a cash or check donation to support Wilsonville Community Sharing, operator of the community food bank and social-services referral agency.

The annual leaf-collection event is a component of the City's franchise agreement for solid-waste collection and disposal services with Republic Services, which is transporting leaves to a composting facility.

Leaves Swept Into Roadways Pollute Water, Cause Flood Damage

My, those fall leaves sure look beautiful ... until they are clogging storm drains, flooding roadways and polluting the water in our streams and rivers!

The City reminds residents to avoid raking or blowing fall leaves, grass clippings and other yard debris onto streets, as these items cannot be removed effectively by street sweepers. Accumulation of leaves on streets also endangers motorists and bike riders, whose tires may slip on leaves.

Help keep our community healthy and livable for everyone by responsibly collecting and disposing of leaves.

Republic Services collects leaves and other yard debris each week in residential yard-debris carts. Avoid compacting debris, as overweight barrels create collection problems for cart lifts. Instead, use recyclable or biodegradable lawn and leaf bags (available at hardware stores), and set them beside your debris cart for collection.

Other disposal methods:

1. Composting: Develop your own organic matter that can be used like soil to repel weeds and retain moisture. Plenty of online tutorials cover the basics to get you started.
2. Recycle Your Leaves: Leaves and other yard debris can be off-loaded at two nearby locations:
  - Grimm's Fuel, 18850 SW Cipole Rd., Tualatin, 503-625-6352
  - S&H Recycling, 20200 SW Stafford Rd., Tualatin, 503-638-1011
3. Bring them to Wilsonville's Leaf Drop-Off Day (see related story).

Your extra efforts improve roadway safety, prevent flooding and protect the aquatic habitat. Thanks!

Stormwater Code Revisions Help City Protect Natural Resources

Wilsonville's City Council recently adopted revisions to Chapter 8 of City Code, which addresses stormwater and erosion control regulations and stipulates how the City can enforce violations.

The revised code addresses changes to federal and state laws, and provides added clarity. New provisions clarify how enforcement actions are triggered, and include escalating penalties for a lack of compliance.

Kerry Rappold, the City's Natural Resources Manager, said stormwater regulations are designed to help the city protect the environment.

"We're trying to protect the things people cherish," Rappold said. "Clean water, organisms that live in the water, and the places where we enjoy nature ... streams rivers, wetlands ... that end up with runoff."

Rappold believes not everyone is aware how pollutants can contaminate stormwater.

"There's still a misconception that if I put it down the drain it goes to a wastewater plant," Rappold said. "In Portland, some runoff does, but we don't have that. Whatever you do impacts the waterways."

The new Code gives the City a mechanism to deal with bad actors, he said.

"Generally, these regulations are going to apply more to developers, contractors and people doing commercial work," he said. "For example, someone brings in a carpet cleaner or a painter who believes the best thing to do is wash stuff down the drain."

Rappold said continuing to raise peoples' awareness is the best tool to address contamination issues.

"It just takes one person to have a pretty significant impact," Rappold said. "It takes a lot of time and effort to remove contaminants once they've reach our waterways. Having an effective enforcement mechanism can help us address issues quickly."

SMART Adopts “Bill of Rights” To Improve Travel for Passengers

In September, the City of Wilsonville formally adopted “Riders’ Rights” for all SMART passengers. SMART had never previously established a formal code of conduct before drawing up a few basic rules that Transit Director Dwight Brashear believes creates a more positive environment for passengers and drivers alike.

Everyone has the right to a safe and peaceful environment while traveling.

“This is really a bill of rights for our riders,” Brashear said. “Everyone has the right to a safe and peaceful environment while traveling, and we are trying to help ensure that by laying out clear, reasonable expectations that our drivers can respectfully remind people of when necessary.”

A public information campaign highlights nine principal rights that riders are provided on all SMART buses. They are:

- Peace of mind. Only police officers and those with valid permits may carry a concealed firearm.
- Smoke-free trips. No smoking – including vaping – is allowed in or near buses or shelters.
- Clear aisles. Riders may not travel with oversized bags, packages, strollers or other items that block aisles.
- Peaceful rides. No excessive or annoying noise is permitted.

- The company of your pet. Pets in enclosed carriers are welcome on all buses.
- The company of your service animal. Service animals are permitted when leashed and not occupying a seat.
- Arrival at your destination. Aimless riding is not permitted; trips shall not exceed two hours.
- Priority seating for those in need. Passengers are asked to kindly offer their seat to anyone pregnant, experiencing disability, or over the age of 65
- Harassment-free rides. Riders shall treat one another respectfully at all times.

The Rider Rights are being posted inside buses and communicated to passengers via social media. SMART will begin enforcement on Dec. 1.

SMART has had a flurry of activity in recent City Council meetings. The agency completed an amendment to the Transit Master Plan prioritizing future service improvements to be funded with revenues from the passage of House Bill 2017 and purchased three CNG-fueled 26-passenger buses to replace aging diesel vehicles.

Community Opportunity Grant Awards Support Five Local Organizations

Each fiscal year, the City of Wilsonville provides $25,000 in Community Opportunity Grants, with the intent to assist organizations in funding projects that promote education, diversity, arts or community involvement in Wilsonville.

At the Oct. 11 meeting of the Park & Recreation Board, the first of two award cycles for the 2018-19 budget year was finalized when the board approved grants to three local programs:

- Wilsonville Community Seniors Inc. was awarded $7,500 to support Wilsonville Piecemakers, a quilting club that produces items that are donated to hospitals and other organizations to provide comfort for those in need.
- I-5 Connection, a community chorus, received $3,000 to support upcoming concerts.
- The Gifted Gears, a robotics team composed of middle- and high-school students from Wilsonville and elsewhere in the Portland metro area, received a $2,000 award to fund participation in competitive events.

In March, community organizations can apply for the second cycle of 2018-19 Community Opportunity Grant awards, which are being allocated in the spring of 2019.

Pay Attention in the Kitchen: Put a Lid on Cooking Fires

Cooking is one of the leading causes of home fires and fire injuries. Last year, about one-third of the residential fires that Tualatin Valley Fire & Rescue responded to began in a kitchen.

TVF&R encourages you to minimize your risk of a fire by organizing a safe kitchen and practicing these safe cooking tips:

- Keep a watchful eye on what you are cooking — never leave cooking unattended.
- Keep your cooking area clean, including the stove top, oven, and exhaust fan.
- Keep dish towels and pot holders away from the burners on your stove.
- Watch your sleeves to prevent them from catching fire or getting caught on pan handles.
- Heat oil slowly and watch it closely; oil can ignite quickly.
- Keep a fire extinguisher in an easy-to-reach location in your kitchen and know how to use it. The discharge of a portable fire extinguisher only lasts between eight and 10 seconds.

Put a lid on it

The easiest way to extinguish a small pan fire is with a pan lid. Turn off the burner and carefully slide a pan lid over the pan from the side. The lid will “smother” the fire, while turning off the burner removes the heat. Do not move the pan until the fire is completely extinguished and the pan is cool. If you do not have a pan lid, you may also use a baking sheet or pizza pan.

Never transfer a burning pan from the stove top to the sink or out an exterior door. The fire may grow in size and burn you or spread to a counter top, cabinets, or curtains.

Grease and water do not mix

Never pour water on a grease fire. Water causes these fires to explode as the burning material stays on top of the water, causing it to spread and putting you at severe risk of getting burned.

If the fire is large and/or continues to grow, do not attempt to extinguish it. Quickly get everyone outside and immediately call 911 from a cellphone or neighbor’s house.

For additional safety tips, visit tvfr.com.

Enroll to Receive Emergency Alerts From Clackamas County

Clackamas County has upgraded its emergency notification system, and is encouraging residents to opt-in now to receive critical emergency alerts should they become necessary.

Sign up at publicalerts.org/signup to receive critical emergency messaging via email, phone call, and text during times of disasters. Important messages that could be relayed include notices to evacuate, shelter-in-place, shelter locations, and other extremely important information.

“This new system — #ClackCo Public Alerts — allows us to utilize Wireless Emergency Alerts and integrate the Emergency Alert System for critical life safety messages,” stated Clackamas County Disaster Management Director Nancy Bush.

POLICE CHIEF’S CORNER

Stay One Step Ahead of Package Thieves This Holiday Season

It’s the holiday season already? How quickly time goes by.

For many of us, myself included, holiday shopping begins this month.

Online shopping is very popular. Unfortunately, so is package porch theft.

Police Chief Rob Wurpes

Here are several tips to help prevent the “Porch Pirates” from ruining your holiday.

- Choose a shipping option that allows you to schedule for a time you will be home or that requires a signature. Tell friends and relatives to do the same when shipping to you.
- Know how to track packages so you know when they are scheduled to arrive.
- Coordinate with your neighbors to pick up packages for one another
- Keep an eye out for suspicious vehicles and people unfamiliar to your community.
- Get to know your carriers. Introduce yourself. Having a connection to the people delivering your packages helps you get better service. If there has been a problem with stolen packages in your neighborhood, tell them.

- If you aren’t typically home when packages are delivered, ship them to your office (with your employer’s permission) or to a friend or neighbor.
- Instruct carriers where to drop packages if you are not going to be home or choose “delivery pick up” so your package is held rather than delivered to your vacant doorstep.
- Consider the purchase of a porch camera to monitor your house. This technology has become more affordable and easier to use.

What happens if your package is stolen?

Give us a call, and we’ll file a report. Be ready to provide camera footage if it is available. Also report the theft to the business you ordered from, let your neighbors know, and contact your credit card company to find out if they offer purchase protection.

Have a great Thanksgiving!

Robert Wurpes, Chief of Police

Town Center Planners Earn OAPA Public Involvement Award

The Oregon Chapter of the American Planning Association (OAPA) has recognized the City of Wilsonville with a 2018 OAPA Award for Public Involvement and Participation.

The award, presented to City staff in Bend in October, recognizes the City’s work to develop a vision and plan for the Wilsonville Town Center.

For two years, the City (with MIG consulting) has sought the perspective of residents, business owners and other stakeholders to inform the City’s future development of 100 acres in and around Town Center Loop.

“Our intention was that every community member with an opinion about Town Center had an opportunity to have their voice heard,” said Miranda Bateschell, the City’s planning manager. “Every aspect of our draft plan – from the project vision to the proposed land uses to building design, community gathering spaces and street orientations – has been considered and influenced by a diverse cross-section of community stakeholders.”

The City’s extensive outreach includes a dedicated website featuring monthly polls, videos, surveys, an idea center at the City’s Library, a 24-member task force of community members, workshops and open houses, and innovative approaches to engage harder-to-reach segments of the population, including:

- Working with a 7th grade teacher at Meridian Creek MS to integrate year-long planning activities into the math curriculum.
- A workshop hosted exclusively in Spanish with assistance from Wood MS Spanish Club students.
- Visits to the Wilsonville Community Center and Wilsonville Community Sharing to engage seniors and low-income residents.
- Events in partnership with the local Chamber of Commerce to get feedback from business owners.
- A community block party at Town Center Park

The Community Block Party in August was one of more than 100 public events that provided an opportunity for community members to weigh in on the Town Center Plan.

with interactive displays and activities, including a Pop-up of the future Main Street and cycletrack.

In total, planners have attended more than 100 events and public meetings, and acquired more than 10,000 data points that have informed the draft Town Center Plan.

The Wilsonville Town Center Plan is being presented to the Planning Commission and City Council for consideration this winter.

For more information on Wilsonville Town Center, visit WilsonvilleTownCenter.com or contact Miranda Bateschell, Planning Manager at 503-570-1581; bateschell@ci.wilsonville.or.us.

Briefs

Change in City Code Could Spur Interest in Accessory Dwelling Units

Grranny flats. Tiny houses. In-law suites. Secondary dwellings. Laneway houses.

Known by many names, Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs) are stand-alone residences that occupy the same property — and property owner — as the primary residence.

Only a handful of ADU’s exist in the Wilsonville area, though this type of development has jumped significantly in the Portland metro area in past few years.

In October, Wilsonville City Council adopted amendments to City development code to conform with new state laws, to provide clarity and functionality, and to remove barriers to ADU development.

“We want to make the community aware of the options for their property,” said Dan Pauly, the City’s planning manager. “If people are interested, we’re happy to talk to homeowners about what can and can’t be done.”

Pauly believes that building awareness about ADUs could spur new development that may provide a benefit to local homeowners who may not have otherwise considered the option.

“In the right situation, this type of development can make a home more affordable for the homeowner and also provide an affordable housing opportunity for someone else — one new unit can provide benefits for two households.”

Pauly said that while the amended code did add some flexibility, authoring the changes was a balancing act that also required protecting the character of existing development.

“We did include standards for parking and design, Pauly said. “We don’t want ADU design to infringe upon the character of our neighborhoods.

ADU development climbed in Portland after a 2010 City Council decision to waive System Development Charges on construction of ADUs. That waiver also exists in Wilsonville, said Pauly, though he does not expect an influx of new ADU development in the near-term.

“It’s a tool in the toolbox that provides the ability to address housing issues,” Pauly said. “Over time, we might see this trend more and more. By addressing affordability and providing housing options, the option might meet the needs of certain households. For most property owners, it doesn’t change much.”

Notable Actions: City Boards and Commissions

City Council	Action	What it Means
Oct. 1	Council adopted, on second reading, changes to Wilsonville Code Chapter 10, establishing comprehensive Transit Rider Rules for patrons of South Metro Area Regional Transit (SMART).	The new code of conduct establishes clear, reasonable guidelines to allow passengers and SMART employees a safer, more enjoyable use of Wilsonville’s regional transit system and provides City staff clarity in the enforcement of transit regulations when necessary.
Oct. 1	On first reading at a public hearing, Council approved an amendment to the 2017 Transit Master Plan.	The amendment, a Programs Enhancement Strategy, prioritizes desired transit service improvements that would be funded with new revenues provided by the passage Oregon House Bill 2017.
Oct. 1	The Council approved on first reading changes to City development code related to the construction of Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs).	The revised code conforms with changes in state law designed to remove local barriers to development of these kinds of residential units, and improves the functionality and clarity of the code.
Oct. 1	The Council authorized SMART to purchase three compressed natural gas (CNG)-fueled 21-passenger buses to replace aging diesel vehicles.	The $333,600 total cost of three buses – federally funded at a ratio of 80:20 – requires a $66,720 local match from SMART’s reserves.
Sept. 17	On second reading, Council approved a re-write of Wilsonville Code Chapter 8 – Environment addressing housekeeping and substantive issues for rules and enforcement of stormwater regulations.	Revised code accounts for changes to federal and state laws. New provisions clarify when and how enforcement actions are triggered and provide for escalating penalties for lack of compliance.
Planning Commission	Action	What it Means
Oct. 10	A public hearing on the Boones Ferry Park Master Plan was continued.	The hearing will be held at the November 14 meeting.
Parks & Rec Board	Action	What it Means

Planning Commission Public Hearing Boones Ferry Park Master Plan (continued from Aug. 8, Oct. 10)

Wednesday, Nov. 14, 6 pm , Wilsonville City Hall, 29799 SW Town Center Loop East

The Wilsonville City Council is scheduled to conduct a public hearing on Wednesday, Nov. 14, to consider the Boones Ferry Park Master Plan. This hearing was continued from Aug. 8. The plan sets the course for about 15 acres of property along the Willamette River, including the existing 5 acre park, 3.5 acres of forested waterfront property to the east, 2.8 undeveloped acres to the west (between the railroad tracks and Boones Ferry Road) and 3.5 forested acres to the north. Currently, the park is utilized for drop-in uses of the playground, open lawn area and basketball court. The park is home to the Tauchman House, a popular location for City-sponsored programs and private rentals.

To help develop the plan, the City hired GreenPlay, LLC, a national firm based in Colorado with extensive experience across the U.S. facilitating, researching and developing similar parks and recreation master plans. Design Concepts, a landscape architecture and planning firm based in Colorado, is the sub-contractor for the project. A City Council hearing on this matter is scheduled for Dec. 17.

World of Speed To Debut New Exhibit on Veterans Day Weekend

Over Veterans Day weekend, Wilsonville’s World of Speed Motorsports Museum is unveiling its new Harley-Davidson motorcycle exhibit, recognizing the iconic brand’s influence on American culture and its history with the U.S. military.

World of Speed Motorsports Museum is open Tuesday-Friday, 10 am-5 pm; Saturday, 9 am-5 pm; Sunday, 10 am-5 pm.

On Nov. 11-12, the museum is offering free admission to veterans and their families. It is also hosting a Turkey Ride on Saturday, Nov. 10, with non-profit Fort Kennedy, which helps veterans move forward after military service. The charity ride benefits homeless veterans. Throughout November, visitors receive half-price admission with food donations for Fort Kennedy.

In addition to the Harley-Davidson exhibit, which is on display for one year, World of Speed has several permanent exhibits that bring visitors to Wilsonville from throughout the Portland Metro area.

- Daytona Banking: a 31-degree banked-turn replica of the original tri-oval course features four vehicles from legendary NASCAR drivers as well as race suits, helmets and other memorabilia.
- Zero to 1,000 MPH: details more than a century of land speed records using vintage car models and toys alongside automobiles from Mickey Thompson’s fleet.
- Women in Racing: a rotating exhibit honors women and their contributions to racing.
- Race Car Simulators: three simulators (NASCAR, IndyCar, and Formula One) test a driver’s skills and nerve during 12-minute races.

World of Speed has received national attention for its innovative automotive education program. Students from nine area high schools attend college-credit classes in the Museum’s two state-of-the-art classrooms and 11-bay auto shop. Behind-the-scene tours are available most Saturdays.

The Start Line Club has kid-focused interactive educational games and toys for children of all ages, including a replica Ford Mustang. The newest addition is the Super Service Center, a replica of an automotive garage where children can change tires, replace “oil,” and perform other services on a kid-sized car.

The museum also offers educational workshops for adults. The next workshop, High-Performance Engine Theory and Design, is Saturday, Nov. 10, 8 am-5 pm, with emphasis on turbochargers and tricks with high performance tuning. The cost is $75 for members, $100 for non-members (includes lunch).

World of Speed Motorsports Museum is located at 27490 SW 95th Ave. in Wilsonville. Admission for adults is $10; seniors, students, veterans, and active military (with valid ID) is $8.50; youth ages 6-12 are $5; and children age five and under are free.

The museum is open Tuesday-Friday, 10 am-5 pm; Saturday, 9 am-5 pm; Sunday, 10 am-5 pm.

COUNCILOR’S CORNER: KRISTIN AKERVALL

Recently, I had the honor of being selected by the American Council for Young Political Leaders to join a bipartisan delegation traveling to Russia, supported by the U.S. State Department’s Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

Over 12 days in September, our seven-member group attended meetings and events arranged by the Youth Public Chamber, a Moscow-based non-governmental organization that helped expand our political perspective and understanding of Russian issues, history, and culture.

The pace was intense and the line-up of dignitaries we met was impressive — Anatoly Antonov, Russian Ambassador to the US; Jon Huntsman, US Ambassador to Russia; Ella Pamfilova, Chairwoman of the Central Election Commission; Veronika Skvortsova, Minister of Health; and many others who graciously shared their time and perspective.

We visited the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Supreme Court of Russia, and met with elected officials at the State Duma of the Russian Federation. We spent time with activists, independent media, entrepreneurs, and business leaders, and were greeted warmly by the people in the Chuvash region along the beautiful Volga River.

For a long time, I will reflect on the richness of our experiences and the vastly different perspectives and histories we witnessed. I cherish the opportunity to better understand US/Russia relations and Russia’s political landscape — both its complex current state and its undecided future. Without surprise, there is a long list of differences between Russia and the United States, but the interconnectedness is absolute as well.

I greatly appreciate connecting with my fellow delegates from such distinctly different parts of the country. In a time marked by a polarized national political landscape, the opportunity to be part of a cohesive bipartisan group feels rare and needed. I am grateful for the respectful care shown within our group, even as we challenged one another’s assumptions and ideas. More than bridging the political divide, we forged genuine friendships. This group will continue to expand my understanding of both the familiar and the foreign.

The experience was transformative. It will always shape my view of our world — simultaneously full of potential and fragility.

Returning home to Wilsonville, and to my position on City Council, I have a renewed appreciation for the importance of public involvement, transparency and trust in our political process. I am inspired to continue to find ways to expand my understanding of the people around me, and to draw from their experiences and perspectives for the benefit of our community.

Watercolor Artist Featured at CCC-Wilsonville Campus Gallery

Until Dec. 14, the gallery at the Clackamas Community College, Wilsonville Campus, features the work of Irene Van Dusen. The landscape artist, an Oregonian, considers herself a late bloomer; she only seriously pursued art after a career in volunteer program development. Nevertheless, her work has been accepted into juried shows around the state.

The artist said she prefers to work in soft pastels.

“I immediately knew this would be my medium.

They are messy and challenging, but somehow take me back to the joy I felt drawing as a child.”

Gallery hours are Monday-Friday, 7am-5pm, with occasional Saturday hours. CCC-Wilsonville is located at 29353 SW Town Center Loop East, Wilsonville. For more information, contact Joyce Gabriel at 503-594-0950; joyceg@clackamas.edu
