1,000 Books Before Kindergarten

Get your child ready for Kindergarten with this fun, free program.

The goal: read 1000 books to your child before they enter Kindergarten.

By reading to your child, you are helping them develop literacy. You are also helping foster their creativity and imagination, increasing their language skills, and improving their critical thinking abilities, all of which are indicators of future academic success.

Read just one book a day to your child. In one year, that is 365 books, and in two years 730 books!

Sign up online at: www.WilsonvilleLibrary.org/1000books

Spring Break Reading Challenge

Make the most of your Spring Break with this sprint reading challenge. All ages are invited to read as many books as they can from March 15 through March 31.

Need some book suggestions? Visit our website for age-appropriate lists, or fill out a “Personal Reading Recommendation” form, or you can call or email us.

Find out more at:

Take and Make packets for children

For Spring Break, your Youth Services Librarians have assembled Take-and-Make Packets to accompany our Stories on the Go: Encore! programs.

Packets are available for pick up while supplies last at the library during open hours or via curbside.

Each activity in the packet matches with a Storytime program on YouTube. Watch the encore Storytime program and follow along!
