RFID tagging in progress

Why are staff and volunteers taking books off shelves and "tagging" them? We're converting to RFID!

RFID stands for Radio-Frequency IDentification. RFID tags can exchange information about an item wirelessly. RFID is common at many libraries, and with items like employee ID badges and retail store inventory.

Libraries place RFID tags

in each library item (book, CD, DVD, etc.) and these tags make checkout faster and sorting materials more accurate.

RFID will also allow staff to dedicate more time to assisting patrons and offering more programs.
